

According to the Creation Model, the Laws of Nature do more than govern the physical world. They also form the foundation of intelligence, reasoning, and the self-organisation of knowledge.

People unconsciously use this objective logical structure to organize knowledge on their own. This self-organizing ability separates natural intelligence from Artificial Intelligence.

From this point of view, the human language is an expression of this underlying logical order, a Universal Logic—not a Universal Grammar—that exists independently of any particular language.